2. Family Communication Committee - The communications committee's primary responsibility is to serve as a liaison between the family reunion planning committee and the family members.
 - This committee should devise multiple methods of communicating with family members of all ages in order to reach a maximum number of attendees.
 - The communications committee will play a very crucial role in attracting a maximum number of attendees to our family reunion.

What Does a Communications Committee Do?

- Serves as the official mouthpiece for the family reunion planning committee.
- Relays all family concerns and ideas, poll results, and attendance information to the family reunion planning committee
- Creates excitement about the family reunion by getting people involved (A good number of volunteers can be recruited early if the communications committee creates enough excitement in their message). The point of contact for this committee:
